$1.50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

RED WILLOW county's aid warrant was sold this week at par.

THE legislature has accomplished few things of which Nebraskans need be proud.

THE income tax law may live, but its usefulness has been mortally wounded, and it seems to be destined to be finally dismembered piece-meal.

THE intimation by Rev. Dr. I.K. Landing of Boston that Grover was drunk at the celebrated New York dinners, is indignantly and emphatically denied by friends of the president.

THE U. S. supreme court very seriously cripples the efficiency of the income tax in a recent decision which favors the corporations in a thoroughly rank manner, as might be expected.

A WOMAN in politics in Cleveland, Ohio, clearly demonstrated the adaptability of her sex to circumstances in the late campaign. She was a republican and a candidate for a nomination to office, but another got there, and she got left. She turned democrat so quick that when the democratic convention sat a few days later she was full-fledged and received the coveted nomination at the hands of that party, only to participate in the general disaster that overtook the whole ticket at election.—Journal.

IN France bells are rung when frost is threatened and immediately the people set fire to tar in their vineyards. The dense smoke protects the vines from injury. This system will be adopted in America sooner or later. The weather service maintained by our state and national governments will give adequate warning of threatened freezing weather and the smoke will do the rest. It would have been worth several millions of dollars to the people of Florida this year had the French plan been fully effective there when the blizzard arrived.—Journal.

The Epworth League are studying the Book of Job in their devotional meetings. Thomas Carlyle says: "The Book of Job is one of the grandest things ever written with a pen; our first statement, in books, of the problem of the destiny of man, and the way God takes with him on this earth; grand in its simplicity, an epic melody, sublime in its sorrow and reconciliation, a choral melody, old as the heart of man, soft as the summer midnight, wonderful as the world with its seas and stars; and there is no other thing in the Bible, or out of it, of equal literary merit."

AN UNSUCCESSFUL WOOING.

A Pretty Girl's Request That Crushed Her Enchanted Admirer.

The drummer was leaning up against the hotel counter talking to the clerk. "You look worried about something," said the clerk.

"I am," responded the drummer promptly. "I saw the prettiest girl on the train today I have seen in a dozen years of travel."

"That oughtn't to worry you." "Pretty women have worried better men than I am," ventured the drummer.

"Who was she?" "Blamed if I know." "Didn't get acquainted with her?" "Of course not. You must think I get acquainted with every woman I see."

"You do, don't you?" "No, I don't, nor do any of us. That's a vile slander on the profession." "Did you try to?" asked the clerk, with a smile of doubt.

"No, I didn't." "Then what's worrying you?" "The way she treated me." "What did she do?"

The drummer fired his half smoked cigar at the clerk viciously.

"Well," he explained, "after I had been gazing at her for an hour or so, I thought I'd try her with a newspaper. She declined it with thanks and a beautiful smile. Then I tried her with a new novel, with the same result. Then I sent over some nice fresh fruit, and it came back. Then I wanted to fix the window for her, and again the thanks and the declination. That lovely smile is what broke me up," sighed the drummer, "and I was sure if I had half a chance I would get acquainted. About 10 minutes after I had made the last offer the train stopped at a station, and she nodded for me to come over. By George, I was sure I had made a 10 strike, and I fairly flew to her.

"Will you do me a favor?" she asked, with that same enchanting smile, as if I wouldn't have done her a million," and the drummer sighed again.

"Certainly, with the greatest pleasure," said I.

"Well," says she, "suppose you get off at this station and take the train for Detroit that comes along this evening. You make me dead tired where you are."

The clerk's eyes filled with tears, and the drummer went out and stood in the door gloomily.—Detroit Free Press.
